The Pass of Llanberis. This is perhaps the most famous mountain pass in Great Britain. Its magnificent side by precipices 2,000 feet high; and, though a treeless tract, was once thickly overgrown (according to Leland) with holly and venerable oaks. The rocks were scattered with glacial boulders.

Dear Emily! another card
 towards your collection.
 I hope you have an enjoyable
 time of it yesterday.
 It has a splendid day for the race, just my luck.
 Well I have no more to say to tell you with this
 with love to all
